About Loka

Loka's school serves the young population of a village in rural Bihar. Families here generally earn their livelihoods as farmers, day-labourers and as small scale business owners. Loka's 100 students aged 4-16, from nursery to grade 8, receive a complete education of Head, Heart & Hand. The school uses NCERT books created by the Indian government as a guideline. Besides subject learning students engage in reflection & meditation, practical work, sports and choice classes such as dance, music, drama. After grade 8 students complete their education at a nearby college and stay connected to Loka through projects and as interns. Currently six senior students (Loka's Lions) follow an internship as teachers. Loka is also setting up student-led business units, such as a Guesthouse, Learning Journeys through India and a Loka Cafe & boutique Shop to create livelihoods for students and sustain the future of the school.

Future Plans

A New Loka 2026-2030

Loka has created its more year vision for the coming 5 years titled 'A New Loka'. The future vision focuses on:

- > Enabling young people to contribute to their local community through holistic and practical education.
- > Enhancing the village where the school is located through agriculture, local entrepreneurship and ecological awareness.
- > Create employment for young people in their own region and thus reduce the outflow to cities.
- > Develop the school in a self-sufficient way that can serve as a global example.

Loka's Flower Mandalas

Every morning a new flower mandala brightens up Loka's school. Students create beautiful designs with the flowers blooming throughout the different seasons in the school gardens. No flower mandala is the same; they are spontaneous creations that occur naturally depending on the available flowers and people. Some thoughts of those involved in this daily intricate and mindful activity:

Shilpi - The mandala adds beauty to Loka's school. But there is more to it than that: it affects everything else that we do. By making the flower mandalas we also take better care of our surroundings, maintain our notebooks well, take care of how we look and dress. Also, when the mandala is not there, something is missing. Its presence makes us feel more complete.

Madhu - Mandalas are the beauty of Loka. We are not here just to learn from books, also to acquire new skills. We make the mandalas in a team and create them for all teachers, students and visitors to enjoy. The mandalas bring peace.

Chanchali - When we arrive in the hall in the morning to make the mandala, children might be shouting. When we start making the mandala, we become quiet and the children who gather around to watch us make it become silent too.

Priyanshu - Just like the children, plants, trees and butterflies, the flower mandalas are part of Loka's family.

Sanjana - By making the flower mandalas we learn to design.

Surya - Being involved in the flower mandala team allows me to observe and slow down.

Step into a New World called Loka

The Farm as a Classroom

Loka intern Shilpi started farming classes with Loka's junior students; ploughing the land, cutting grass, making the land smooth, preparing a plot and sowing seeds. Children learned the names of farming tools in English and Hindi. They thought about which vegetables grow this time of year and which crops they wish to cultivate. Village children guided the city children by telling them which greens can be cut and fed to the cows and which greens need to be kept for growing into vegetables. Did you know that coriander seeds need to be gently crushed before sowing to allow them to germinate? Children learned farming skills, collaboration, communication, recognising plants, being leaders and how to serve and that learning in the outdoors with head heart and hand is useful and fun. Let's Farm!

Teacher's Perspective

At Loka we work as if the school is ours and the students are our own children - that is the level of care and ownership. There is an atmosphere of respect between me as a teacher and the school's management. What I admire is that hard situations are dealt with in a quiet and solid way - people are not talked about in a bad manner and the focus lies on improving the school. What I wish is that Loka opens another branch. And to those who support Loka: thank you and we need more supporters to further improve the education Loka provides and to make it available for many more children!

~Abhilasha, Hindi Teacher at Loka

Remembering the Past

Every year Loka students participate in The Open Canope (was: Out of Eden Learn), an online learning programme for Intercultural Exchange, designed by Project Zero (Harvard). Most recently students participated in a history learning journey, for which they went into their village to listen to stories of their elders and learn more about the past of their village. In below interview Loka student Shaili describes an interview with her neighbour Naresh, a retired soldier of the Indian army:

Hey everyone, How are you? I hope you all are good. This is a girl who is going to describe one person whom I interviewed. He was sitting outside his home. He was wearing a white shirt and lungi (towel), he was looking smart and fresh because he had come after bathing and sitting outside in the sunlight. When I went there I said Namaste Baba then he replied 'be happy' then I explained why I am here for Interviewing you, he gave me a chair to sit. He is a very strict and bold person, his name is Naresh. He was in the Indian army but now he does farming because he is retired. He and his wife live together and they have one son who is also in the Indian army and there is a daughter in law. He was living in this village for a long time so he has felt many difficulties in his life like his land had been captured by another person for a long time who is saying not to return the land so he is always trying to get his land back. In past time there were many struggles in all person life there was a lot of poverty and when the flood came then it would cover the road and then people had to suffer from that situation. But it has changed from that time, now the road is made properly. Before time also food was healthy, people did not get fastly sick but nowadays people get sick easily because of food change. In the past there was equality in the village but slowly it got disrepair. He was missing that time of equality and nowadays all people fight with each other.

I wish that again people become equal and respect each other.

Three meaningful Loka Events in Amsterdam and London A Movement of Learning for a Bright & Beautiful World

Loka's Board in the Netherlands looks back with satisfaction and delight on the three special meetings of Friends of LOKA this year with Shari Tishman (Harvard Project Zero) as special guest.

"On April 4, in the beautiful canal house of The Embassy of the Free Mind in Amsterdam, Charlotte took us with her beautiful photos and stories to the small village in Bihar with that special school. Stories about the children, their development, how things are now and what the dreams are for the future, close by and long term. On April 6, we received a group of friends of Loka in the Rijksmuseum, in the Asian pavillion, around the statue of Lord Shiva. Stories there too, and just like on April 4, Shari Tishman took us on a slow looking exercise. April 11, there was a special meeting in London, where the oldest students of the school themselves also spoke digitally. We experienced the involvement with LOKA across borders. We would like to thank each of you who attended one of these meetings. People came from different places, cultures and countries and were connected by the story of the school, which is increasingly taking on its role within the local community. And connected by the hope and inspiration for our own communities."

From Loka's Dutch Board

"I was especially impressed by the people, Loka's board members; their intelligence, commitment and their large hearts – they were so very generous in giving their time and sharing their visions. The Loka community consists of good and smart people who are connected to something larger than themselves. It's impressive!"
~Shari Tishman, Educator, Author and a Senior Research Associate and Principal Investigator at Harvard Project Zero.

A New Toilet Building for Loka

A Local Project with Global Support

Loka's latest building project: construction of a toilet unit for students, teachers, visitors and staff. Right now Loka has a small toilet building on the farm which is out of sight of teachers, too small for the growing group of students and shared with everyone. For practical reasons such as safety and hygiene a proper toilet building is being created attached to Loka's school building. Interiors of the old toilet building will be reused where possible and the building itself will be converted into a tool shed. The new toilet building is extra special because it has been made possible due to the kindness of various people and organisations: The designs are made by Madhu Shankar of PsdA Ayanagar - a renowned Delhi based architecture bureau that has supported Loka's school from the very beginning. The construction is co-financed by Hidrostal NL-BE, with special thanks to its managing director Bart de Crom. Bill Wei decided to support Loka's school for the coming 5 years through his family-fund and the toilet building is the first project he is contributing towards. Hofsteestichting is a Dutch fund that has been supporting Loka for many years, they will also be contributing towards this necessary and important project.

Inauguration of the toilet building is planned on 15 August.

We are touched by the kindness and support of everyone involved.

Become a Friend of Loka

Loka's school is situated in a village in a remote part of India. Parents of students generally work as small scale farmers and day labourers. They are unable to afford fees for quality education. Through Loka, their children have access to a unique school that educates students to shine in their full potential, uplift their surroundings and inspire the world.

Ways to support Loka's school include:

- Students plant 10 trees - EUR/USD 10 or INR 900
- Education of one student/month EUR/USD 35 INR 3000
- Daily fruit for 25 children/month EUR/USD 100 or INR 9000
- Montessori educational materials EUR/USD 350 or INR 30000
- Entrepreneurship Course 15 students/1 year EUR/USD 3500 or INR 3 L
- A New Store Room for Loka's School EUR/USD 5000 or INR 4.5 L
